Bradley Arant Boulton Cummings Partner Ann Peldo Cargile
Elected to Anglo-American Real Property Institute

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (September 17, 2010) – Bradley Arant Boulton Cummings LLP is pleased to announce that partner Ann Peldo Cargile has been elected to the Anglo-American Real Property Institute (AAPRI). The AAPRI is a not-for-profit organization made up of elected members who are closely involved with real property in the United States and the United Kingdom. Membership is by invitation only and limited to just 50 individuals from each country.

“We congratulate Ann on this distinct honor from a respected and prestigious industry organization,” said firm chairman Beau Grenier. “As her colleagues, we already know the level of knowledge and experience she brings to her work. It is nice to see this recognized in such a prominent way.”

The AAPRI brings together a membership of the most knowledgeable and best-qualified real estate professionals from the U.S. and UK. Its mandate is to promote discussion and analysis of the causes of and potential answers to problems involving ownership, use and development of land, and land transactions, with a view to finding and advancing practical solutions.

Ms. Cargile represents parties in all aspects of commercial real estate, including leasing, finance and joint ventures. She has a national leasing practice, serving as counsel to landlords and tenants in both lease negotiation and lease enforcement. Ms. Cargile also represents lenders in placing financing, and has a great deal of experience assisting borrowers in negotiating favorable loan terms and advising them when projects become distressed. She is a fellow in the American College of Real Estate Lawyers and holds a J.D. (Order of the Coif) from the University of Virginia School of Law and a B.A. (with high distinction) from the University of Virginia.
